Last weeks Program.

Editors have opinions. Last week was like a delightful picnic. Good ribs, good music, and good friends. Old friends are always good to see again. John Peterson was mobbed by friends, as it should be. The center table had saved a seat for Gina Lollobrigida, but she was a no-show.

The 37th meeting of the Rain Of Slatter was confidently hosted by President-elect, Annie Asche. Cristian Gonzales quoted Martin Luther King, Jr for the invocation, "... thank God I am not the man I used to be."

Jim Kelly's donated raffle prize was won by Jack Ritchey, 5299603. The fortuitous prize included a bottle of his son's wine, Bottle Jack, which he proudly gifted to John Peterson.

Announcement.

May 19 will be a scholarship meeting. Fred and Sue Gallick reached a milestone in their donations, $10,000, and now will have a named scholarship. Thank you.

Donna reminds us that for $100, you can enjoy all three Saturday meals with entertainment at the District Conference. And the forums, and house of friendship, are free.

Guests, Bonnie Baichon and Cindy Tiet, co-presidents of the Rotoract Club came to announce their gala fundraiser, tomorrow, April 29, at Peace United Church, 5 -9pm, $60 dinner.

OMG, Jim Zenner at it again as detective. Wowing us with jokes, puns, and twisty turns. We sit always on the edge waiting for the inevitable lineup of riddles. This editor was too busy chuckling to remember the jokes. But I figure that's OK because then I can enjoy them the next time I hear them. But for those of you, like me who like to hear a good one repeated, Jim challenged Blaine to a poetry duel. The parameters were Iambic Pentameter, using "Timbuktu." Jim, in renaissance mode, floated this:

*"Out across the desert sands
rode the camel caravans horses and camels, 2 by 2
destiny, Timbuktu."*

Then, as he stepped aside, Blaine stands and sets his mind in motion, as he strides toward the dais. With the charming calm of a Brokaw, trained in the intricacies of poetry, Blaine floated this:

*"Tim and I, a hunting we went,
found 3 girls in a tent,
they was 3 and we was two
I buck one and Timbuktu."*

>As editor, I 'dmire the charm of humorous entertainment, but it seem to me as though the iambic was tetrameter.<

The speaker last week, Mike Naumann, a Rotarian from Sacramento club, leads Asian region YoungLife. He gave us some YL history (founded, 1941, in Texas) with some of the oldest clubs in the bay area, 60 years old. This editor remembers YL in Santa Cruz 48 years ago. And some of us in the room remember personal times at YL camps in our youth.

Sacramento Rotary club service project is English literacy in Nepal. The club has over 300 members. Each year he leads a group to Pokera, Nepal via Katmandu. They feel that even though English is spoken in India, in Nepal, English is only available to the privileged. So their group avails themselves to (high school) students, in (classroom settings, or YoungLife club settings?) where they converse in English, as English speakers, not English teachers. The Rotary club partners with YoungLife, because the faith based organization has good people and a working system in place at locations around the world. Nepal being one, where they feel the need is strong for English literacy. Their global grant value is about $75,000 which pays for curriculum and teacher training. Volunteers pay $5500 for the experience, and if you are interested , their next trip is planned for November.
