Programs - Elizabeth Clifton

Invocation - Bruce Dunn

Detective - Blaine Brokaw

Due to your editor's absence this last meeting, we relied on Donna Maurillo's brilliance in writing this week's Spokes.

Menu: Next week's menu: Salads ~ Spinach and Salad Bar Entrée ~ Chef's Homemade Chili and Baked Potato Bar Dessert ~ Assorted Cookies and Brownies

Raffle: Janet Krassow won the door prize, a supply of Mackenzie's chocolates, donated by Tom Foster. But Tom wasn't there because he more important things to do. Janet left early because she couldn't stand to look any longer at a photo of Gary Reece wearing a Bernie Sanders t-shirt.

Announcements:It is with a great deal of sadness that I inform you of the death, yesterday afternoon, of our fellow Rotarian and friend, John Mahaney.

John joined our Rotary Club on August 17, 1984. He served on the Club's Board of Directors from 1992 to 1994 and Club President 1996 - 1997. John was a Paul Harris Fellow plus 4 and past Endowment Trustee. John was a long time active member in our Club and will be greatly missed as a Rotarian and a dear friend to us all.

If you're keeping track, Jill Stone is now a bleached blond.

Detective report: Peter Cook was the detective. He told embarrassing stories about himself and asked several people to top them. We learned that Peter once had red stuff in his teeth while talking with someone, that he tried to strip a live wire with a pocket knife (yes, he was shocked), that his kid peed on him and his cell phone at the Boardwalk, and that when he repaid a loan from his father, the check bounced. Other Rotarians had their own embarrassments. Jan Derecho fell off her bike and had an unconscious ride in a helicopter, Russ Hobbs didn't know how long his wife's hair was, John Brokaw was a horse track bookie in dental school, John Burroughs had a disastrous investment in college but still became a stock broker, Erik Dybdahl shocked himself and almost fell off a 12-foot ladder, and John Laird said that Gary Reece tried to buy a car from a Russian guy during a "forced march" through the woods in Crimea.

Meeting: Aleene Althouse caused a sensation by showing up in a British-inspired mini-dress and go-go boots. Nice legs! It was all part of President-Designate Annie Asche announcing that her fundraiser next spring will have a British theme. So start planning what you'll wear - Beatles wigs, kilts, royal attire, Carnaby Street mod fashions, Shakespearean costumes, James Bond themes, or what have you. If it's British, it's grand. Annie hasn't announced a menu yet, but we suspect that Bubble & Squeak or even Steak & Kidney Pie might be part of it. Or maybe not.

In keeping with that spirit, Annie arrived dressed as Queen Elizabeth and was escorted to a waiting helicopter by bodyguard Linda Burroughs and 007 Al Smith. After descending with a parachute into the meeting, Her Royal Majesty opened the meeting with "God Save the Queen." Or "America the Beautiful." We couldn't tell the difference because both have the same music, if not the same words.

Program: Former Santa Cruz Mayor John Laird, who is now the California Secretary of Natural Resources, discussed state finances and why they can't pay for everything we want. He said that Governor Brown wants Sacramento to clean its own house before he will ask state residents for more tax money. (Yay for that!) In addition, the Governor is determined to "get things done," and he doesn't suffer fools. (That means we shouldn't ask Jerry to speak at our Rotary Club.) John also noted that California now has a more far-reaching strategy for water conservation and management. Regarding the drought that one presidential candidate says we don't have, John noted that we had 500 forest fires in January, which is normally one of our wettest months.
