Dr. Susan M. Branson is a professor of psychology at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. She has a PhD in psychology from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Her research interests include the development of social skills in children and adolescents, and the role of social skills in the development of mental health problems. She has published numerous articles on these topics in peer-reviewed journals. She is also the author of the book Social Skills Training for Children and Adolescents, published by Guilford Press.

Detective - Blaine Again

Last Last Week’s Meeting

Let’s go over last week’s meeting. First of all, it was fantastic, in terms of content, execution, weather, timing and attendance. We had guests, visitors, plenty of members and the program was outstanding. I of course did not win the drawing; Sam Bishop did (I won’t say I hate him...I’m just a little miffed). He declared how happy he was to have won because it meant he didn’t need to shop for Elena’s birthday gift...hmm. Colleen Harrison offered an excellent and quick invocation and Annie Asche led us in the welcome song. Then of course we had the detective report and Angelo DeBernardo did an excellent job with that. He collected Happy Dollars and promoted the Poker Tournament on November 6 supporting Main Street School.

The speaker was Michael Bolte from the UC Observatory and he spoke about the new 30 meter telescope being built. It will be housed in Hawaii on top of Mauna Kea near the Keck Observatory. His address was super interesting and complicated and well delivered and Larry fixed the projector and told Dr. Bolte how to make the mike work; just awesome. He described how early large telescopes used big heavy lenses, and how the newest generation of telescopes use series of mirrors instead of lenses because they’re lighter, easier to manufacture and can be made much, much larger than lenses. Dr. Bolte showed us slides and described time/space continuum and my head hurt (in a good way).
