Today's Program

Pure Water Soquel

Ron Duncan & Melanie Mow-Schumacher

The over-drafted aquifer available to the Soquel Creek Water District threatens the volume of water supply and endangers water potability due to seawater intrusion. After examining many strategies to address this serious problem the District is finishing the EIR, applying for federal and state grants, and moving towards permits and project approvals for its Pure Water Soquel project, an innovative approach to replenishing the aquifer.

Last Week's Highlights

Invocation: Program director for Q1 put a fitting end to his quarter by also sharing a thought-provoking quote about being thankful for what you have. I am sure members are thankful for Tom...either thankful for the quarter he put on or thankful that he's done.

Raffle Winner: An amazing gift was provided by this quarter's editor, Cristian Gonzalez, CPA. Apparently not everyone agreed that it was amazing. Dr. McKenzie was the lucky winner but chose to pass on the prize. Brad Bogard was the ultimate winner.

Detective Report: Thank God for happy dollars or else Bob Davidson would not have met his quota with the long winded, yet entertaining, stories that were shared. I'm sure everyone still wants to hear the conclusion of Dr. Dunn's tree farm.

Larry Wolfsen likely stole the show with the revelation that he doesn't make any bad investments. That wasn't the best part, however. Larry shared that his $1 investment in his marriage certificate was his best investment ever. But wait, it gets better...the certificate was actually $2 and he looked over at his now wife and asked that she also contribute $1 because success is more likely when you have a little skin in the game. Turns out he was right because it's been 57 years.

Last Week's Program: Red Badges

I was told early on in rotary that some of the best programs come from its own members. We were fortunate to hear from two of our newer members, Alliah and Kasey. Both are very polished public speakers that have a breadth of experience.

Alliah, originally from Florida, is a proud graduate of FSU and has worked throughout the United States for various companies either in or servicing the hospitality industry, including UnitedHealth Group where she currently works.

Kasey, originally from Orange County, is a real estate professional at David Lyng. Kasey has a unique background that includes army ranger training and owning his own surf shop in the Caribbean.

Please follow up on Kasey's request to convince Sid to reopen the tasting room at Hunter Hill.
