Rotary Meeting 10/2/2020

Jeannette Pagliaro begin the meeting with a surprise. The surprise was wrapped in the form of Sam Bishop. Sam's surprise was a harmonic version of the US Marine Band's "Stars and Stripes Forever!"

I was surprised to see how big my nose is in these zoom meetings.

Invocation:

Sarah Madsen told the story of an acorn. An acorn will grow thru challenges to become a tall tree. Therefore, achieving the highest version of itself. Sarah suggest we must go thru the negativity to get to our higher self. Or if life has you down just act like a nut and get high.

Announcements:

Survey results regarding coming back to regular meetings. 62 people responded. 15 prefer to stay home. 30 prefer to come back. The rest need more time sheltering in place to think about it.

Next weeks program:

Update on what's happening at Cabrillo College by Matt Wetstein

Rotary town hall:

look for an email from Ian.

Defective Report:

Mike Hughett began his journey like the Titanic, full of promise and excitement and like the Titanic he sunk when surrounded by the icy waters of zoom presentations. No less Mike's excitement carried on. Mike said he wanted to play a game so naturally his first thought was of the boyish Tom Foster. The game was about internet memes regarding quarantining and Covid 19. Members were asked to identify with the message on the meme or suggest a member who best fits the description. This game revealed much about our members. Amie Asche would prefer to be quarantined with her ex. Linda Burroughs is a master at real estate sales even though she is retired. Her new selling point: "Can you See yourself being quarantined in this house." Mike Allard finds Gary Reece to be attractive. Janet Krassow revealed that she went home with the wrong husband because they were wearing masks. Stoney Brooke has been brewing beers and getting high of his own supply. Cynthia Larive travelled to the furniture but there was nothing left so she came back. Tom Parker is really a Muppet. So is Erik Dybdahl. Haircuts are a challenge for your editor. John Burroughs doesn't wear pants during zoom meetings. Bob Davidson doesn't know how to sit and stay.

Today's program was UC Santa Cruz Chancellor Cynthia Larive
The program was an insightful presentation on the happenings at the University. They have adapted to the current environment and have begun offering almost all courses online. They are trying to reduce the number of students on and off campus by asking those who have not yet signed leases to ask themselves whether they needed to be in town and if they don't to consider remaining at home. This approach could help our health system but acknowledges it is bad for their business and the local economy. And so, it is a difficult time, and she knows that this will not last forever. Until then the Chancellor and the University are offering asymptomatic testing, free tests for students, and quarantine space for students.
