Rotary Meeting October 9, 2020

Presiding president Bob Bosso began the meeting from his office in Hawaii. He thanked Jeanette Pagliaro for filling in and then asked her to fill us in.

Announcements:

Jeanette announced and has details on the following events:

There will be an online meeting on October 17th for the avenue of service.

There is a Rotary book club.

There is a blood drive @ the fairground.

There is a board meeting this coming Wednesday. See Ian for details.

Invocation:

Jan Derecho gave us a quote from Doris Kearns about service above self and how finding success often depends on collaborating with other people. Anyone that's married knows this truth.

Defective report:

Detective David Terrazas reminisced about the good old days of red badge speeches, meeting in large groups, sharing a buffet meal, and no facial coverings a year ago.

Now we are so different. Now we are wearing masks. David has taken this further and is now wearing blue blockers. Presumably to protect his eyes from infection.

His report centered around news. He shared amazing stories from around the globe. Such as nature is coming back, and people can see things like mountains and trees. Turns out the world is a beautiful place. People are getting out. A 4-year-old girl went out four miles into the sea on a unicorn pool toy. She was rescued by a fairy. Not to be out done a Spanish man accidentally sailed from Portugal to Argentina. It took him 85 days. He said next time he will remember he cannot sail and stay home.

David's message was to share news about the people he loved. So, he reached out to Rotarians for positive stories. In a round robin presentation he gave us updates on several Rotarians. As is Dave's nature, he began with himself. He shared that he has adopted a new daughter to keep his dog company during Covid-19 SIP. David admitted that to deal with all the people in his house, he has been making a lot of cocktails. So, he asked others what they were up to: John Dickinson organized a socially distant concert. Peter cook has been snowshoeing in the Sierras. Kasey Hinchman built a garden. Bob Davidson has ¾ of a Billion $. Mike Hughett has opened a new business. Annie Asche has a new granddaughter. Mike Allard has learned to cook a new meal. His menu includes mac and cheese and now hard-boiled eggs. Michele Costa was cleaning out her Storage when she found her mom.

Speaker: Kara Guzman from Santa Cruz local came to speak about the local news desert that currently exists in this nation. Basically, everyone goes online and no one is supporting the old print model. The old model was cost intensive and could only be distributed once a day. The news business model is forced to evolve. She is hoping that a local paper can pop up online thru monthly subscriptions. Santa Cruz Local currently has 640 paying members. The online news source is filling the huge gaps in local news. Gaps partially created by the local paper's owner having a New York address. The Santa Cruz Sentinel was covering local government news but no longer does. Santa Cruz Local does, and its members get to submit questions to get answers they want. You can join by going to santacruzlocal.org/ membership
